When the console indicates that the machine's replication back to on-premise is complete by marking the machine status with a purple launch icon, it is ready for failback.
To initiate a failback on such machines, please select the machines and click 'FAILOVER'.
Replication into the source machines will stop, the bootable media will be disconnected and the machines will be rebooted into their original operating systems.

Also note that if after clicking 'FAILOVER' the source machine does not reboot or reboots into the bootable media again, this means that ejecting the boot media automatically failed and needs to be done manually.
